

MyBank

We live in a world where nearly in every life aspect technology is being used, from being publicly available through social media, to being easily reachable on your mobile phone, to nearly everything in your life requiring you to use some sort of technology. If we ever even had doubts on whether or not the technology evolution will ever come to a halt, with the pandemic that took the world by storm in late 2019- early 2020, we now see even more strides being made in the technological universe.

We are here to ease in to the technology now, by providing a revolutionary application that will provide you with the basic information of the nearest banks in your area, the name of those banks, what are the working hours while also giving you insides of other users feedbacks and ratings on the bank that you are currently viewing.

Going to the bank is something that is inevitable for most people (some people use e-banking but as we all know that is still flawed and it has major room for improvement), by using our application MyBank we will surely make everyday banking for you a lot easier, our application is easy to use and does not require any major experience in technology usage for the average user.

The data which our application will use, it will be from OpenStreetMap, providing the user for more information about the banks.
